The cat eye look is a classic but the fox eye makeup look that is made popular by supermodels like the Hadid sisters and Kendall Jenner is getting a lot of attention lately. The fox eye makeup look seeks to elongate and lift our eyes with nothing but some eyeshadow, eyeliner, and mascara (add falsies if you must), and is inspired by the upturned eyes of a fox (duh).

There are various versions of the fox eye look, and you can either do the Erin Parson version with the empty space filled up with white liner, or the Brianna Fox version that we usually see on the runways. Whichever type of foxy eye you prefer, all of them uses pretty much the same technique of elongating the inner eye corner with a little triangle, and lifting the outer corners upwards with makeup. Don't worry if you are not sure what I'm talking about, the two videos below will answer all your questions.

Watch Brianna Fox and Erin Parson videos and learn how to create that trendy fox eye makeup look. Both versions are a little different, so let us know which one you prefer!
